Academics

The Baldwin-Wallace College Conservatory of Music offers a Bachelor of Music degree, a Bachelor of Music Education degree, or a Bachelor of Arts degree in music. The Bachelor of Music and Bachelor of Music Education degree programs offer the highest possible level of musical and academic integrity available to an undergraduate student. Several majors within the Bachelor of Music degree help students as they prepare for a particular career emphasis. All students must audition and be accepted for applied study on a primary instrument, regardless of the major they choose. The Conservatory enjoys accreditation by NASM, National Association of Schools of Music, recently renewed for the maximum ten years.

Music Theatre Program

The music theatre program was established at Baldwin-Wallace College in the 1980's. Victoria Bussert joined the Conservatory faculty in 1996 and Baldwin-Wallace is now recognized as one of the top programs in the country for music theatre. A total of 55 students in this undergraduate only, Bachelor of Music degree program, insures the individualized attention that leads to success. The comprehensive and balanced curriculum includes four years of intensive training in voice, acting, and dance. The close personal attention by teachers combined with the desire of each student to excel has resulted in recent graduates having appeared on London's West End, Broadway, and International and National Tours.
